

Signed a one year contract with Cingular. They are upgrading their system and say my phone is no longer good after July. They say I have to sign another 2 year contract or pay a penalty of around $200 to get out of contract. I think since they did not tell me my phone will no longer be of any use that I should be able to get out of contract without any penalty. The phone I have is also a lot better phone than I would get from them anyway. I have a $200 phone and prefer the phone I have. I also would not even mind going the full year with my personal cellular phone. Please help me. This is not right and Cingular Wireless should not force me into another contract this way.
